CRESSE- OECD Executive Programme (CALEP) Testimonies

It was an outstanding experience. The programme brings together speakers of a remarkably high calibre, offering both a broad and in-depth perspective on competition policy and economics. The quality of the discussions, combined with the diversity of topics covered, makes it an exceptionally valuable learning opportunity.

Another aspect I particularly appreciated was the opportunity to exchange views and experiences with colleagues from different countries and institutions. These interactions enriched the programme considerably and created a unique environment for professional learning and networking.

Overall, I found the course highly rewarding and would strongly recommend it to anyone seeking to deepen their understanding of competition issues while engaging with leading experts and peers in the field

Rocío Becerril Basa

CRESSE 2026

The CRESSE–OECD Executive Programme was a very interesting and comprehensive course, truly focused on gaining knowledge. It offered an excellent combination of the economic and legal aspects of competition law, with outstanding speakers. The wonderful CRESSE team made the whole experience even more enjoyable, and the beautiful location made it truly special.

Teo Kvirikashvili

I really enjoyed my time at CALEP in Kos, this July. It was a great opportunity to share experiences, pick up new ideas, and have some interesting discussions with colleagues from other competition authorities, many of which continued well beyond the classroom. I particularly enjoyed the mix of interactive lectures and practical case studies, as well as the opportunity to learn from some of the leading experts in the field. The programme was well balanced and kept us engaged throughout. And of course, spending five days on a Greek island in July certainly enriched the overall experience! Hope to see you next year in Crete 😉

Jelena Popovic Markopoulos
Serbian Commission for Protection of Competition

I just wanted to thank you for the wonderful organization of CALEP CRESSE — everything was absolutely perfect: the readings, the logistics, and above all, the people.

Vera Sopeña

CALEP 2025

I would like to express my sincere appreciation for giving me the opportunity to participate in the competition training program held in Kos, Greece. It was an extremely valuable experience, and I gained significant knowledge and practical insights that will greatly support my work in the field of competition law and enforcement.
I truly appreciate the time and effort invested in organizing such a high-quality program, and I am grateful for the opportunity to have been part of it.
I would also be very interested in participating in more training programs in the coming years.

Shamsah Al Kaabi

CRESSE 2026

I recently completed the CRESSE course, and I was totally satisfied with the experience. The program was well-structured, covering a comprehensive range of topics that are crucial for competition enforcers and leaders. The instructors were not only knowledgeable but also engaging. One of the things I like the most it was its focus on practical skills—communication, decision-making, and conflict resolution—which are essential for any leader.

CALEP 2023

Many thanks for everything! All was very well organised.

Hara Nikolopoulou
Vice President, Hellenic Competition Commission
CALEP 2023

An awesome competition law and economic program. It is really complete and interesting with reminder of basics but also a presentation of all the novelties covered in the Conference. The lecturers were all very competent and engaged well with the class. The group dynamic was also great with all the fellows from all the programs & conference. The organization was also almost flawless. It can be noted that the program is quite intense will a lot of classes in one day. I will recommend this program to my colleagues but also the competition law world.

Dr. Hervé Raimana Lallemant-Moe
Polynesian Competition Authority

CALEP delivered what it promised. I appreciated the ability of the lecturers to present their relevant and relatively high level topics in an easy to follow manner…

Ronald Ramkissoon
Chairman, Trinidad and Tobago Fair Trading Commission

The course was enlightening and enriching. I shall come again.

Kenneth Gyado
Competition and Consumer Protection Tribunal, Nigeria

The course coverage and content was excellent and the lecturers were very truly experts of the subject matters they discussed… Overall, the course was enlightening and allowed a finer understanding of the different concepts, issues and developments in competition law.

EMERSON B. AQUENDE
Philippine Competition Commission

The course was very well-designed, and the presentations and materials were very relevant and helpful…

Christopher Sieuchand-Commissioner
Trinidad and Tobago Fair Trading Commission

"I have found CALEP an excellent program for leadership in competition authorities. There was a good balance between the breadth and the depth in the courses or the various lectures and courses. This program put into light the key challenges that competition authorities are facing."

Deshmuk Kowlessur
(Competition Commission of Mauritius)

"Excellent course!"

Tuulia Hakola-Uusitalo
(Finnish Competition and Consumer)

"Thank you for the opportunity to attend the OECD CALEP course. The knowledge gap is now reduced and it will help a lot in my organization. I hope to attend more courses in future."

Martha Kaukonde
(Competition & Fair Trading Commission-Malawi)

Overview – Objectives

Since 2019, CRESSE co-organises with the OECD Competition Division the Competition Agency Leaders Executive Programme (CALEP). CALEP is a yearly executive training taught by eminent competition professors, lawyers, economists and members of the OECD secretariat. Its main objectives and intended learning outcomes are to give an opportunity to participants to:

I. Get acquainted with the economic theories that underlie competition law and the methods and tools that are used to assess potentially anticompetitive business practices;
II. Learn about how to manage the external and internal environments of competition agencies and about the assessment of economic evidence in Courts;
III. Learn about the latest developments in competition law in EU, North America and other jurisdictions;
IV. Get acquainted with OECD instruments, guidelines and best practices, as well as with recent OECD policy work and discussions on the digital economy and other topics;
V. Get acquainted with HR management issues, developing talent, career progression, leadership and leading change.

A multidisciplinary approach is followed, with courses in competition economics and law and in management taught by leading experts with deep expertise and vast practical experience in competition law and its enforcement from academia, policy world and from the private and public sector.

Who is the course for?

The course is tailored to be an essential professional development opportunity for Leaders / Heads and emerging Leaders of competition agencies, Commissioners, Board Members and Senior Officials (Directors General and other high-level officers) of competition and other regulatory agencies throughout the world. Participants are not required to have any prior knowledge of economics or quantitative techniques. Classes are delivered in-person and presentation materials are designed to help delivery of key concepts and special emphasis is given in drawing on case and real-world examples in order to review and apply the principles and methods.

Structure – Duration (2027 CALEP)

The 2027 Competition Agency Leaders Executive Programme (CALEP) will run for 5 days. The teaching method is by two academic hour sessions.
In total, the Course will be 20 sessions and 1 Special Lectures or 42 academic hours (1 academic hour = 50 minutes). Sessions are largely self-contained so participants can select to attend a subset or all of the sessions.

A Special Keynote Lecture by Prof. Niamh Dunne (London School of Economics) will also take place during the Course.

Venue

MINOA PALACE RESORT, Chania, Crete.

Detailed Course Contents

Friday, July 2 15:10 – 16:50	SESSION 3: HR management issues, developing talent and career development by Prof. Nancy Papalexandris (Athens University of Economics and Business) Career and talent development is a critical challenge for HR professionals as it is essential for sustaining organizations and giving each individual within the organization a meaningful focus for the future. It involves career management interventions which are not necessarily a distinct HRM activity since they are related to a number of other HR processes such as recruitment, performance management and appraisals, training and development, career guidance and development assignments. It also involves the active participation of line managers who must be prepared to provide career guidance and offer development opportunities to their people. The lecture will focus on various definitions for "talent" which may vary across organizational settings, discuss the role of effective career self-management, describe and evaluate various career management practices, and stress implications for organizational change and effectiveness.
16:50- 17:10	Coffee Break
Friday, July 2 17:10 – 18:50	SESSION 4: Leadership and Leading Change by Dr. Margarita Mayo Cuellar (IE University) In this session we will discuss current research ideas and practices on leadership for organizational change, presenting existing approaches and strategies for introducing, implementing, and institutionalizing change. We will highlight the importance of leadership in dealing with organizational complexity and uncertainty. The overall aim of the session is to introduce participants to the state-of-the-art thinking in leadership for organizational change and to the process of successfully communicating and balancing contrasting needs such as stability and change, and cost-cutting and growth.
Saturday, July 3	SESSION 5: Market Definition and the Determinants of Market Power by Ms. Yi Ling Ng (Partner, RBB Economics)

09:00 – 10:40	The role of product and geographic market definition in the enforcement of competition law. Demand and supply substitution. The hypothetical monopoly test. Critical loss analysis. Tuesday, July 6 08:30–10:05	SESSION 16: Managing the External and the Internal Environment of Competition Agencies II by Prof. William Kovacic (Director, Competition Law Center, The George Washington University) Managing internal politics; Conflict management and building consensus. Leadership techniques; Prioritisation strategies. Streamlining of decision making processes. Dealing with budget constraints. How to be a successful chairman – the main factors behind success and the main factors behind failure. Managing human resources and developing talent.
10:05- 10:25	Coffee Break
Tuesday, July 6 10:25–12:00	SESSION 17: Best Practices in Conducting Market Studies by Despina Pachnou (Senior competition expert, OECD) Market studies, as an alternative to enforcement, allow competition authorities to analyse a market and identify problems, and solutions to make it more efficient. This session describes the extensive experience the OECD has in this field, including the recent OECD paper on the similarities and differences in the use of market studies across countries and the 2018 OECD Market Studies, in the execution and design of market studies for competition authorities.
12:00- 13:10	Free program
Tuesday, July 6 13:10 –14:45	SESSION 18: New Enforcement Areas: A Focus on Labour Markets and Sustainability by Despina Pachnou (Senior competition expert, OECD) As new societal challenges related to sustainable development emerge, many competition authorities are analysing whether their current tools and focus capture the full range of effects to ensure well-functioning efficient markets. Climate change has put into focus the limitations of short-term price effects as a proxy for long-term efficiency and has raised questions as to whether a more dynamic approach considering quality and innovation may make markets greener and more efficient. In parallel, significant empirical and academic research has put the spot-light on monopsony power in labour markets - the near mirror image of monopoly – as much more prevalent than previously believed. This session will provide insights into the work of the OECD on these two topics and discuss the experience of competition authorities in the last few years.
14:45- 15:05	Coffee Break
Tuesday, July 6 15:05 – 16:35	SESSION 19: Competition Assessment of Regulations and Competitive Neutrality by Dr. António Gomes (Deputy Director, OECD Directorate for Financial and Enterprise Affairs) Governments and competition authorities are called to regularly identify and revise policies that may unduly restrict competition. While multiple approaches exist to dealing with this challenge, the OECD Competition Assessment Toolkit is a very popular choice amongst governments, due to its holistic approach and efficacy. The OECD has also developed the Competitive Neutrality Toolkit to complement the competition assessment methodology with good practices to promote a level playing field. This session will illustrate the two Toolkits in detail, and explain how to draw the most benefit from its application.
16:35- 16:55	Coffee Break
Tuesday, July 6 16:55 – 18:30	Competition and AI by Dr. António Gomes (Deputy Director, OECD Directorate for Financial and Enterprise Affairs) Artificial intelligence (AI) promises to be the latest General-Purpose Technology (GPT), so ensuring this potentially transformative technology remains competitive could be vital to ensure its benefits are realised and disseminated across economies, as well as ensuring ongoing incentives to innovate. This session will consider how competition is shaping up in AI markets and across the AI value chain. This includes potential competition issues such as access to key inputs, access to distribution and issues relating to market structure, as well as how AI partnerships may be assessed under existing competition policy frameworks. It will also explore how AI may alter dynamics of competition in other markets as firms adopt AI based solutions
